Taylor Mathiowetz gets the win in the circle. Striking out 8, walking 3 and only allowing 3 hits.

We got off to a slow start tonight. Our contact was solid, but early on we just couldn't find the gaps. Taylor had a tough first inning locating the zone, but once she settled in, she was steady the rest of the way. The defense backed her up and made the plays we needed.

Our offense finally broke things open in the 6th. We strung together four hits, worked two walks, and took advantage of a pair of Jaguars errors. Once we got runners on and played a little small ball, we put real pressure on their defense. Our hitters did an excellent job moving runners, executing situational at-bats, and finding ways to push runs across. It turned into a big inning and the momentum shift we needed.
